TRANSPORTATION AROUND THE CITY

TAXI'S & UBER

If you prefer something more direct and faster, call for a cab or Executive Town Car of Washington DC. They will get you where you need to be by the most direct route and they are fairly reasonable.

Or, if you have a smartphone and android sign up for Uber where you can order and pre-pay for on-demand car service from door-to-door. (Link: <https://www.uber.com>)

CIRCULATOR BUS

The DC Circulator provides five bus routes that take care of some of the empty spots in the subway system. The DC Circulator buses are a convoy of brand new, sparkling clean and easy-to-access buses painted bright red. The most popular bus route is the Smithsonian - National Gallery of Art Loop which goes around the National Mall. Another important route is the Georgetown - Union Station. The bus fare is $1 a trip (or 50 cents if you're a senior). The DC Circulator can also help you connect to Metro stations for a more flexible transportation solution. The DC Circulator comes about every 10 minutes. Bus stops are identified by a red/silver circulator sign. DC Circulator Maps are available once you board. Those seeking guided or narrated tours should use the Tourmobile or the Old Town Trolley. (Link: <http://www.dccirculator.com/Home/BusRoutesandSchedules.aspx>)

METRO-RAIL & METROBUS

WEBSITE: <http://www.wmata.com/>

Metro's super helpful website will allow you to plug in your location and destination to find out the best/quickest route via bus or rail. The site will also tell you how much your transit fare will be!

DRIVING

Driving around the city can be hard on out of town visitors – parking in the city is even more difficult!

If you must drive and need help with parking, try the Parking Panda website (www.parkingpanda.com/dc-parking). This site helps you find the BEST parking rates available in the city, based on your destination.

OTHER ACTIVITIES: SIGHTSEEING & MUSEUMS

BLOSSOM KITE FESTIVAL

When: March 28, 2015

Details: As part of the festivities at the National Cherry Blossom Festival, kite enthusiasts compete and show off their kite flying skills on the National Mall in Washington, DC (Link: <http://dc.about.com/od/specialevents/a/SmithKiteFest.htm>) This is just a short walk away from the EndoMarch location – something nice to do for families with young children!

DINING

There are several places to eat, while in DC!

Of course, the national “chain” restaurants are everywhere – you should have no problem finding those!

For those of you who need options: Union Station offers a variety of restaurants and fast-food options!

Become one with Maryland & have some SEAFOOD – there are several hot spots for seafood lovers:

- McCormick & Schmicks
- Horace & Dickie’s Seafood
- Maine Avenue Fish Market
- Luke’s Lobster

The National Harbor also offers nice variety of food and bar places – you will need a car to get there!
